Level 2 Award in Emergency First Aid at Work

Available qualification

Level 2 Award in Emergency First Aid at Work QCF

Mandatory Unit - Emergency First Aid Skills
(Credit value = 1)

QCF The new Qualifications and Credit Framework (QCF) replaces the existing National Qualifications Framework (NQF). More information is available on the Qualifications and Curriculum Development Agency (QCDA) website www.qcda.gov.uk

This First Aid qualification is aligned to the Health and Safety (First Aid) Regulations 1981, Health and Safety Executive (HSE) which were revised on 1st October 2009. The Regulations require that, in order to provide first aid to employees who are injured or become ill whilst at work, employers must have suitably qualified people, equipment and facilities.

The qualification consists of one mandatory unit, Emergency First Aid Skills which may be of value as transferrable evidence when used within other qualifications or as stand alone provision.

How do I achieve the Award?

In order to achieve the qualification, learners must demonstrate their ability to meet the assessment criteria of the individual unit.

Lantra Awards also offer an Emergency First Aid at Work training and assessment course which enables learners to evidence and achieve the Level 2 Award in Emergency First Aid at Work. By completing the course, the learner will receive a certificate of basic training ensuring compliance with the Regulations.

Are there any age restrictions?

Yes, learners must meet the minimum age restriction of 19 years.

What are the benefits of completing this qualification?

This qualification will enhance the ability of personnel to work safely, effectively and efficiently in the workplace, reducing unnecessary risks to themselves and others. It can be tailored to meet the needs and context of the business.

Additionally the qualification will ensure personnel and the workplace is complying with HSE Regulations. It also has the full support of the Sector Skills Council, Skills for Health.

How long will it take to complete?

The Emergency First Aid at Work qualification is awarded on the achievement of 1 credit (10 Guided Learning Hours) and all credits must come from the mandatory unit.

Guided Learning Hours represent an average rather than a defined number and the actual time taken by learners to achieve the number of credits required will vary.
